Stop wasting my time with preseason games

Chris Potter Below the Rim

Is there any bigger waste of time than preseason action in professional sports?

I recently had the "pleasure" of catching part of a preseason tilt between the New Jersey Nets and the Miami Heat. Now I know an unfortunate number of people would rather get a root canal than sit through an NBA game, but I had my reasons.

There was, of course, the oddity of having NBA action on ESPN2 at three o'clock in the afternoon, in early October no less. As a basketball junkie, it was impossible to pass up at least quick gander.

Plus, I've been a Nets fan for the majority of my 21 years, although I can't tell you exactly how or when this came about. After being among the elite teams in the Eastern Conference for most of the decade, the Nets have embarked on a rebuilding process with the trading away of Jason Kidd and Richard Jefferson.

The current edition of the Nets has been completely overhauled during the past year, given an influx of draft picks, free agents and the bounty of players acquired in exchange for Kidd and Jefferson, former franchise stalwarts.

Needless to say, I was curious to get my first glimpse of all the new faces on the roster.

Even so, I found myself hard-pressed to watch more than a few minutes of the action, if action
